

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
PS: Unfairly elected President Bush was elected was one purpose alone, to hurl this Great Nation into the volcano of war, tarnishing the very Face of Democracy, burying his mistakes under the mounds of lies, and becoming the Saint of Tyranny and Distortion. If Media too falls under the sway of this Saint of Lies, then God help America...any Guru left to listen to the pleas of the innocent Americans? In the name of Humanity, Media Guru, let the adds of both parties run in all fairness; at least, giving a chance to the voters perhaps, to glean lies out of political madness. Anyone, out there, listening???
